

Nathan R. Sisodia

Nathan is an associate in the firm's Columbus office practicing in the Real Estate and Banking & Finance Departments, where he concentrates his practice primarily on commercial leasing and real estate-related purchase and sale transactions.

Nathan's experience includes analyzing and drafting commercial lease agreements, real estate purchase agreements, and closing-related documents. Nathan also has experience analyzing title commitments and surveys on behalf of purchasers, sellers and lenders, as well as preparing and responding to title objection letters. Additionally, Nathan's practice includes reviewing banking and finance contracts for large corporate organizations, including publicly traded financial services institutions.

In connection with the deployment of small cell wireless technology, Nathan prepares, analyzes, and negotiates attachment and use agreements on behalf of wireless telecommunications carriers to obtain access to the facilities of municipalities and utility providers throughout the country.

Prior to joining Porter Wright, Nathan served as the student director of the Small Business & Community Economic Development Clinic at the George Washington University Law School, where he supported a tech-startup company and multiple non-profit corporations in various legal matters, including organizing legal entities, 501(c)(3) compliance, and intellectual property protection. Nathan also served as a law student intern with the Federal Trade Commission in Washington, D.C. and a law clerk for the California Department of Justice, Office of the Attorney General, where he gained significant experience related to antitrust law and its application to the pharmaceutical industry.
